

We at MICROCOMM believe that customer is the reason why we exist and to serve his needs is our duty. This belief pervades the functioning of the whole company. We pay special attention to market research, always trying to know what the customer requires, discussing with him his problems and queries. This useful feedback is then made available to our designers who give shape to it in the form of quality, value for money systems.

At MICROCOMM a sale doesn't start with just a quotation and end with a bill or sale invoice. We are proud to match our quality and reliability with customer service which is second to none in the industry. Our sales personnel and representatives are competently trained in the entire product line and are always there to provide a comprehensive pre and after sales service. Both before and after a sale we provide application assistance to customize our systems to your requirements.

TRY US TODAY